WEDNESDAY, JULY 11, 1855.

The Journal is reminded of Col. Preston's entrance into public life. He was a Whig and as such ran for the Convention in 1849. But did the Journal support him? No! he opened his columns to the abuse of Col. Preston, and suffered an anonymous correspondent over the signature of "A Proslavery Whig," to pour the vilest personalities upon him, without editorial comment. Col. Preston was a proslavery Whig and received the support of the Democrats. The Journal and Courier opposed him, and supported the emancipation ticket.—Times.

This is neither the first nor the second time that the same paper has charged the Journal with having supported the emancipation cause in 1849. There is not a particle of foundation for the charge. In the canvass preceding the election in 1849 of delegates to the Constitutional Convention, we opposed emancipation more earnestly than any other paper in the city. We wrote and published more against it than any other paper either in the city or in the State. We wrote so strongly upon the subject that the Courier, then an emancipation paper, charged that we "abused and villified the emancipation writers," and that, "having failed to suppress the cause of emancipation by arrogant dictatation," we were "resorting to vituperation and denunciation against the supporters of the cause." We replied in a long article, from which we publish a few sentences:

We have charged them (the writers in favor of emancipation) with nothing but an over-heat-ed zeal, running into blindness, bigotry, and fa-naticism. * * We have charged them that their passiona'e pursuit of their object has blinded them to the difficulties which lie in their way, to the consequence of their action on their own cause, and the train of evils sure to flow from that action. * * But while we say that they have done more mischief than fifty times their number could do good though their lives were protracted beyond the days of Methuselah, we make no imputation upon their motives. * * Upon the subject of slavery we are not aware that our opinions have ever undergone any change. We have never in private or in public recommended the doption of any plan of emancipation.

We wish that slavery in Kentucky may be allowed to work out its own solution gradually.

allowed to work out its own solution gradually, quietly, and peacefully, without any effort to quietly, and peacefully, without any effort to bring it to a more sudden termination, and without any effort to perpetuate it."

On the day of the election, we put forth as strong an article against emancipation as we knew how to write. That article began thus:

If emancipation is the true policy of the State of Kentucky, it ought to be supported by facts and arguments consistent with themselves; and, if it were the true policy, it would be supported only by such facts and arguments. But we find it supported by considerations the most inconsistent in print and in oral discussions.

There were several highly important questions besides emancipation upon which the delegates to the convention would have to act in that body; and upon most of those questions the rectly opposite to our own, yet Mr. Guthrie ice-mountain. was the only one of them for whom we did not not vote for either of the emancipation canditiments which Mr. Guthrie published under his own name on the evening before the election, the proof of our emancipationism would no doubt be considered by our present opponents as comete. On that evening Mr. G. circulated a andbill in the German language, under his own name, saying that he was in favor of colonizing the twenty thousand free negroes of Kentucky and in favor of emancipating the two hundred thou sand slaves thereafter-making compensation to the onmore

To the charge of the Times that we opened our columns to an article denouncing Col. Preston, we answer that we also opened our columns to two replies from his friends warmly defending him, and that we ourselves voted for him.

Gen. Quitman was openly charged a few weeks ago by the New York Sun, the organ of the Cuban Junta, with having dishonestly pocketed a very large sum of money paid him by the Junta for the promotion of the last conspiracy to invade Cuba. Gen. Quitman replied in a card in the Natchez Courier that the statement was false and slanderous, but declined to make any explanation, assuming that the present is not a proper time. To this the Sun rejoins, that as the General's connection with the Cuban Junta has ceased, and the expedition has failed, now is a very proper time to make explanations. We think ourselves that the proper time to meet a charge of embezzlement or breach of trust is when the charge is made. Gen. Quitman, however, has always had a high personal standing.

THE FOREIGN NEWS .- We publish this morning the details of the engagements on the 7th, 8th, and 9th ult. before Sebastopol, in which the allies triumphed. The particulars of the battle of the 18th, of which the telegraph has given us a sketch, and in which the allies were worsted, have not yet been received. The accounts we give are very interesting, and we deem their publication necessary to keep up a succinct history of the war.

The Providence Journal says: "An esteemed correspondent in London intimates to us in a private letter, that it is rumored in that city and generally believed that the allied army had met with a more disastrous defeat than is contained in the newspaper accounts. That it is said that in their attack on the Redan and Malakoff forts they were not only defeated, but were driven beyond their advanced parallels."

On the other hand, the Paris correspondent of the Commercial Advertiser says: "I ought to have mentioned, while speaking of the absence of telegraphic ihtelligence, that Gortschakoff is quite as silent as Pelissier, and as it is evident that the former would naturally make known what the latter would seek to withhold, it is thought that messages from him have been suppressed."

The Pacific, which sailed from Liverpool for New York on the 30th ult., is now due.

Among the recent failures in England have been Mr. Hickman, an ironmaster near Birmingham, for $100,000, and Messrs. Whitehouse & Jefferies, also of the same neighborhood, whose liabilities are likewise stated to be heavy.

The weather in England had continued favorable for all except the grass crops, which were injured by a harsh dry temperature.

THE MAMMOTH CAVE-CARTER & THOMAS'S STAGES .- This is the very season for going to the Mammoth Cave, the season when a visit to that great wonder of the world is the most delightful. We never feel the intense heat of summer without an ardent longing to be there. It is the only refuge from the fervors of the summer in this section of the country. > THE FOURTH OF JULY .- All our exchange papers are more or less crowded with accounts of celebrations on the 4th of July. The day appears to have been observed with more than ordinary attention. DECISION OF JUDGE BULLOCK ON THE CONTEMPT CASE. Commonwealth of Kentucky On Attachment.

Commonwealth of Kentucky

John Barbee, et al.

On the 17th day of May, 1855. Michael Kean filed his petition in this court alleging substantially that he was the proprietor of a tavern in the city of Louisville known as the Louisville Hotel, which had been kept in every way and provided as the law directs and requires, that the license heret-fore granted to thin had expired on the 10th day of March, 1855; that it was the legal duty of the defendants acting as the General Council of the city of Louisville to grant licenses to tavern keepers in said city; that he subsequently presented his petition showing the pre-payment of State and city taxes as required by law, and in fact a strict and literal compliance with the ordinances of the city and the general law of the State in such cases made and provided; that his petition had been rejected by the defendants, or a majority of them, without any inspection or consideration of it, that it was the purpose of defendants or a majority of them to grant tavern license to no one except with the provision that no malt, spirituous, vinous, or fermented liquors were to be sold in such tavern by retail; that such conduct, acts, and purposes were contrary to to their plain, legal duty.

He therefore asked this court to grant to him a writ of mandamus, commanding the defendants to grant him a license to keep a tavern in the city of Louisville as asked in his petition to the General Council.

On the 18th day of June, process having been duly served, the defendants resp noded, without denying the facts set forth in plaintiff 's petition, but virtually admicting them to be true. They placed their defence upon the ground that it is not their duty to grant license for the rotail of liquors in the city of Louisville; that it is wholly within their discretion to refuse all tavern license. In volving such a right: and that in refusing the license to plaintiff, they acted in obedience to public sentiment, which had been expressed at the preceding May election as opposed tothe further gra ardent spirits. Such being in substance the facts presented by the pleadings, this court decided:

Ist. That the General Council of the city of Louisville had exclusive authority to grant tavern licenses wichin the city limits.

2d. That it was the duty of the General Council to comply strictly with the statute of the State, regulating that subject, as contained in chapter 99. Revised Statutes.

3d. That by the terms of that statute, as expounded by the Supreme Courtof the State, a license to keep a tavern includes the privilege of keeping and selling spirituous liquors, &c., in such tavern, the proprietor being responsible in the mode provided in the law itself for the abuse of the privilege.

4th. That the General Council having sole jurisdiction of the subject within the city, it was the duty of that body, in the exercise of a sound discretion, to grant such tavern licenses as the public interest required; and that it was not the legal right of that body to reject the petition of the plaintif and the petition of all others for the reasons set forthin the response of the defendants. The statute of the State enacted in pursuance of public policy required the establishment of taverns in the city of Louisville, and the General Council had no authority or power to annex any conditions to the license, or withhold any rights from the applicant not contained within the statute itself.

5th. That in the case under consideration to enforce the discharge of a plain and necessary duty, a mandamus was the legal and appropriate remedy.

It was therefore ordered and adjudged that the defendants, the Mayor and members of the General Council, do grant to Michael Kean a license to keep the tavern in Louisville, commonly known as the Louisville Hotel, from the 10th day of March, 1856, until the loth day of March, 1856.

A copy of this order, as appears by the sheriff return, waduly served upon each of the present defendants; and it being suggested that the defendants, came into Court and filed the following response:

"The def

ed that Mrs. Schlager was murdered in April last in Green Lane and horribly mutillated, and that her husband was arrested on suspicion.

Court, and are now ready, and have ever been ready since said decision, to submit and to comply with the same. They disclaim all contempt of the authority of the Court, or disobedience of its mandates. They pray for a discharge of the rule herein against them. At this stage of the proceeding, and upon the filing of the several responses referred to, the following order was ordered to be entered, and it was done accordingly:

"This day came the plaintiff, by his attorneys, and the dendants, C. T. Taylor, Joseph Burton, W. H. Grainger, Thos. D. Howard, G. W. Dunlap, and H. L. Pope, filed their responses to the order of the Court and rule in this case against them, which response being satisfactory to the Court—it is ordered that said rule be discharged as to them. Also came in proper person John Barbee, E. D. Weatherford, Fred. A. Kaye, Alfred Harris, J. A. Gilliss, P. R. Holbrook, W. T. Weaver, Thos. S. Hayden, Thos. W. Riley, Thos. Shanks, C. D. Pennebaker, Robert Vaughan, and J. P. Gailbraith, and filed their response to the order and rule of the Court entered on the 30th of June, 1855, requiring them to appear and show canne why they should not be attached and dealt with for a contempt of the order of this Court; and it appearing from said response that said last named defendants are resisting the legal authority, and acting in contempt and violation of the orders of this Court in this cause made—it is therefore ordered that an attachment issue against the body of each of the last-named defendants, returnable here on Monday, the 9th day of July, 1855.

The defendants, Geo. L. Douglass, David L. Beatty, Ben. I Raphael, and John Zeigler, having been served with a copy of the rule, and having failed to appear and respond to the same an attachment is awarded herein also against each of them, re turnable at the same time and place, on this the 9th day of July, 1855, to which day the attachment was made returnable.

turnable at the same time and place, on this the 9th day of July, 1855, to which day the attachment was made returnable.

John Barbee, David L. Beatty, Thos. S. Hayden, Ben. I. Raphael, John Zeigler, and W. T. Weaver field their written responses signifying a willingness to obey the orders of the Court herein, and Alfred Harris, Geo. L. Douglass, C. D. Pennebaker, and J. P. Gailbraith also filed written responses signifying their willingness to supersed the judgment or order made herein.

The following named defendants, viz: Thos. W. Riley, E. D. Weatherford, Fred. A. Kaye, J. A. Gilliss, P. R. Holbrook, Robert Yaughan, and Thos. Shanks fled a written response declining to execute and obey said mandates or orders or to supersede the same.

These several responses were made upon the parties being brought into Court under attachment. Such is a summary of this case.

It is not intended to enter upon an argument to sustain the decision of this Court in awarding the writ of mandamus. That, for the present, must be considered an adjudged case.

That the Court has jurisdiction of the case, and that the mandamus was the appropriate process to enforce its judgment, will not be disputed. It will also be conceded by all who have knowledge of such proceedings that it was and still is competent for the defendants to take an appeal from the decision thus rendered either with or without a supersedeas. It was their clear and manifest duty therefore, if dissatisfied with the judgment of the Court, to have taken one of two steps, either—1st, having $\vec{h}{r}_{int} deciment of two supersedeas, It was their olear and manifest duty therefore, if dissatisfied with the judgment of the Court, to have taken one of two steps, either—1st, having $\vec{h}{r}_{int} decimend by an an appeal without supersedeas, or, 2d, by taking an appeal with supersedeas, giving bond as required by law. There is to the legal comprehension no alternative left but that which some of the present defendants have thought proper to adopt, viza a persistent and of the present defendants have thought proper to adopt, viz: a persistent and refractory disobedience of the authority of the law.

2d. This is not debatable ground. It is a position which no man or set of men, no matter what relations they sustain to the community, whether in or out of office, can occupy with impunity. If it be true, as alleged, that they are prompted to it by the popular voice, that fact but increases the obligation to crush the monstrous principle in the bud. But insubordination to legal authority and bold resistance to the constituted tribunals of the country is no part of the genius and spirit of our people, A just and enlightened public sentiment must at last reach the conclusion that the law is supreme. It is freely conceded that the motives of the defendants are pure and honorable, and that they are influenced by a noble zeal in the cause of temperance, but the end proposed does not justify the means.

That cause will be best promoted by upholding the law in all its integrity, and cannot fail to suffer by disputing and subverting its authority. It will be perceived that the steps in this case have been slowly and cautiously taken, and it is now added with the earnest hope that the defendants would at least cocupy a different position from that which they have now voluntarily and deliberately assumed. This court has now, however, as olem duty to discharge, and that is to see that the law is executed.

In view of the whole case, therefore, it is now ordered—The defendants, having been brought into court on the attachments heretofore awarded against them for failing and refusing to obey the orders heretofore made by this court in the case of Michael Kean against the defendants and Nancy Vacaro against the defendants, which order in the case of Michael Kean is as follows, to-wit: This cause having been heard, it is ordered and adjudged that the defendants, the Mayor and General Council of the city of Louisville, do grant to Michael Kean alicense to keep a tavern in the city of Louisville, which was a license to keep a tavern in the city of Louisville, which was a been beard, and the Court being advised, orders and adjudges that the defendants, the Mayor and wembers of the General Council of the city of Louisville, do grant to Michael Kean and the Court being advised, orders and adjudges that the defendants, the Mayor and members of the General Council of the city of Louisville, do grant to Nancy Vacaro a license to keep a tavern on the south side of Market street, between Fourth and Fifth cross streets, in the city of Louisville, from the 10th day of March, 1856, to the 10th day of March, 1856, which orders and judgments were made by this Court in cases regularly before this Court and to which the defendants were parties by the services of process and answer and the following named defendants, D. L. Beatty, John Barbee, Thos. S. Haydon, Ben. I. Raphael, John Zeigler, and W. T. Weaver, having by their responses signified a willingness to supersede said judgment orders; and the following named defendants having by their response signified a willingness to supersede said judgment orders; and the following named defendants. From New Mexico .- A letter from Don Fernandez de Taos, New Mexico, May 31, 1855, gives the following:

The last two weeks have been marked by much excitement in our plaza. Three courts, during that time, have been in session. Judge Brocchus has been holding a special term of the U. S district court for the trial of criminal cases, and a court-martial, and a military court of inquiry have, at the same time, been in ses-

The two latter courts have grown out of a riot which occurred in this place in the month of March last, among the soldiers of one of the companies of 1st regiment of U. S. dragoons, under the immediate command of Maj. Thompson, in which Maj, A. H. Blake, of that regiment, was assaulted and severely beaten by seventhy. ral privates of that company, who were in a of intoxication.

The whole subject has been thoroughy investigated. The court-martial has tried five soldiers on the charge of mutiny, and the court of inquiry has instituted a rigid scrutiny into the affair, with a view to discover the source and origin of the outrage.

MURDER IN MARTIN COUNTY .- We learn that a very aggravated murder was committed in Martin county, about ten miles from Orangeville on Thursday last. The murdered man was named Collins, and the persons arrested on the charge of committing the deed are Wood Lawson, Mat. Vandeveer, and Watson. It appears that Collins was engaged in rafting timber down Beaver creek to his mill, when he was fired upon from an ambush on the shore. He was struck by several shot, but immediately landed his raft and jumped ashore for the purpose of confronting his assailants. From the appearance of Collins's body, a desperate fight must have ensued before they succeeded in despatching him. The body was thrown into the creek and left. Lawson and Watson were arrested on suspicion and a coroner's jury summoned. in Martin county, about ten miles from Orangesuspicion and a coroner's jury summoned. Vandeveer was summoned as one of the jurors, but when confronted with the corse he shook

TURKEY AND HER FRIENDS THE ALLIES .-The Czar Nicholas was in the habit of typifying the condition of Turkey by referring to it as that of a sick man. Sick though she may have been before the war, she now seems to be ill even unto death. Her complaint is mortal, and, though she may linger, the catastrophe must come, the question of her dissolution being reduced to a mere matter of time. The allies entered upon the war ostensibly with the disinterested and chivalric purpose of vindicating the rights and preserving the nationality of Turkey, but, before the war had lasted a year, we find them negotiating for peace upon other grounds and entirely independent of Turkey. To limit the power of Russia and not to maintain the integrity of Turkish sovereignty is now the avowed purpose of the Western powers in the prosecution of the war. If Turkey is permitted to remain with nominal sovereignty. it will be so arranged by the allies not from any regard they entertain for her rights and her intests, but from their fear of Russia. It may suit the allies to interpose the effete government of the Sultan as a a barrier to the march of the enterprising Russian who might take a fancy to extend his dominion in the direction of Hindostan and Algeria. Of all the belligerents, Turkey seems to have now the least interest in the war; indeed her complicity in it at all seems to be almost lost sight of. When the allies are spoken of, no one thinks of the Turks as one of the parties; in fact the existence of Turkey seems to be practically ignored. The Sublime Porte, it is true, had an ambassador at Vienna, but he appeared to be a mere automaton, and was there simply to inscribe his name on any paper that the ministers of France and England might direct him to sign. The interests, that the embassadors of the allies were at Vienna to arrange, were the interests of France and England, and not those of Turkey, and the fact is that Turkey takes no efficient part either in making peace or in waging war; she has virtually retired from the stage of action in the great drama of European antagon-The truth is, Turkey has been made to feel that, under no combination of circumstances, can the present war eventuate to her advantage. This great fact has been palpably forced upon her notice and made clear to her comprehension, and the result has been to infuse a suspicion into the minds of her people that their interests are to be sacrificed to those of pretended friends. It is matter of notoriety that Constantinople is becoming rapidly and thoroughly Europeanized. French uniforms are as common there as Turkish shawls and turbans, and the soldiers and officers of the Allies are to be seen jauntily parading the streets, with a sort of satisfied air, which seems to say, "we are at home here." The French in the Pera quarter of the city have taken a lease on their barracks for fifteen years, and they offer every indication to the astonished Moslems that their stay is to be a long one. There is a beautiful custom prevailing in Turkey that at once attests the graceful hospitality and the respect for authority for which the Turks are celebrated. Whenever a man of rank and distinction visits the house of one of an inferior station, the house, with all the things therein, is immediately placed at the disposal of the visitor; it becomes as it were his, and the actual owner is a guest in his own house while the visit lasts. The French and English seem to be availing themseives of this species of hospitality on an extended scale. They have taken possession of the Turkish household, with some indications that the visit may be never-ending.

A memorial to the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States, setting forth the claims of the surviving soldiers of the war of 1812 to be pensioned, was adopted. Registration of Letters .- In the new system of registration for the greater security of valua-ble letters sent by mail, with each letter bill sent from the mailing office a blank letter bill is sent from the mailing office a blank letter bill is sent, which is denominated the return letter bill; and which should be filled up at the office of delivery according to instructions, and returned to the mailing office from which it was received. We are informed that several postmasters, disregarding the general instructions with which they have been furnished, and misunderstanding the instructions printed on the bill received from the mailing office (which is to return to "this office") are in the habit of returning these bills to the department.—Washington Union.

RESTORATION OF LANDS IN MISSOURI .- The Washington Union says that it is in contemplation to restore to market in September next the remaining lands withheld from sale or entry along the route of the Hannibal and St. Joseph railroad, in the northern part of Missouri. These lands comprise two strips unappropriated lands (nine miles croad), extending entirely across the State from the Mississippi to the Missouri river, and lying outside of the six-mile limit on each side of the route of the railroad. Having been unavoidably reserved for sale or entry, their restoration is calculated to give a new impulse to the neighborhood they embrace. They are in the districts subject to sale at Palmyra, Fayette, Milan, and Plattsburg.

Wm. Warfield, Esq., of Fayette, has recently sold to Brutus J. Clay, Esq, of Bourbon, a roan heifer, 12 months old, sired by the imported bull Chilton, out of a cow by Capt. Benj. THAT "MONSTER WEDDING."-The New York Evening Post says as follows in reference to the great wedding that, according to the newspapers, is soon to take place at the St. Nicholas House in New York:

Judge Concklin and his daughters were guests at the Hotel about a month ago, and nothing was heard at that time, or since, of any intended marriage fete there or elsewhere in which they were interested. There is to be a small weddin party at the St. Nicholas some time during the present month. A gentleman named Lawrence, of Kentucky, is to be married to a Southern lady, and the wedding party will come to the North and stop a few days at the St. Nicholas. About fifty rooms have been partially engaged for the party. The bride and bridegroom and their friends will afterwards leave the city for Saratoga and other places of summer resort. This is the nearest approximation to the "mon-ster wedding" of which the proprietors of the St. Nicholas have any knowledge.

"Do not avoid the delicious ripe fruits—the nice hot green corn; feast on such of Beneficence's bounty; be temperate—eat freely if you would escape the bloody flux." What! what! don't we know better, sir?

In the summer of 1852 we resided on Red river,

Ky., where the flux broke out with alarming fatality. Fresh vegetables, all succulent food was almost universally unmolested. Our observation and reflection (and perhaps our importunate appetite) induced us to reverse the austere prophylactic rules. Our family all dieted on succulent food, and particularly on the baneful green corn and melons.

We all had the flux? No!—though our abstemious neighbors had, and the community was in deep mourning.

The subsequent season we resided in Bath county. Scarcely a family in our vicinity escaped unscourged by the destructive epidemic, though our prophylactic diet was avoided as cautiously as if it had been saturated with virulent poison. Our large family of fifteen persons indulged freely in the luxuries of seasonable -green corn, &c .- and escaped every symptom of the flux.

We have observed coincidences sufficient to deem it our duty to call attention to an assertion—that succulent food, ripe fruits, green corn, and generally all anti-scorbutic diet may he considered not only anti-fluxic but anti-

And we are glad, for the sake of humanity, to refer to such able authority as Prof. M. L. Knapp's recent paper, published in the N. Y. Journal of Medicine, on the "Cause, nature, cure, and prevention of Epidemic Cholera." His conclusion, that cholera is a scorbutic disease, is most plausible, if not demonstrated; or at least, that anti-scorbutics appear to prove pre-ventives, and therefore not causes of cholera. Might we not form a similar conclusion in rela-

We submit the above to the unprofessional public, as to them we think it more rightly be-longs; and because the observation of the mati-scorbutic kind an abrupt and too exclusive adoption of it may stimulate the scorbutic condition into an acute manifestation. JULY 6, 1855. A. J. S .- Medicus.

THE JEFFERSONVILLE RAILROAD .- It affords us no ordinary pleasure to be able to announce that under the management of the present effi-cient president and directory this road has attained a position that ranks it among the best managed roads in the West. Much of the popularity and rapidly increasing business of the road is directly attributable to the active and energetic efficiency of A. P. Osborne, Esq., its present gentlemanly superintendent, under the wise and liberal policy established by its president and directory.

Like all Western roads, it was commenced and prosecuted under difficulties of no trivial

It had to meet and overcome opposition from home as well as abroad. But past difficulties have been overcome by energy, prudence, and forecast, and we may safely anticipate for it a more prosperous future.

The road never can become what it should be until it is completed to Indianapolis, its natural and necessary terminus. As long as it is dependent upon the caprice of the Madison road and subservient in the least degree to the Madison interest, it never can assume that proud position of an independent road to which its business con-nections and facilities entitle it.

We understand that the negotiations pending between our road and the Madison road in reference to new running airangements have to-tally failed. If that be true, we hope that the tally failed. If that be true, we nope that the company will go to work in earnest to complete the road through to Indianapolis as originally contemplated, and every friend of the road should feel himself under obligations to lend a helping hand in the way of "material aid" to push it forward .- Juffersonville Repub.

It is light like glass; white and bright like silica; inoxidable like samples as a point of the said of the sale of the said of the samples are said to the samples are like gold; malleable like copper; as easily molded as lead; as tenacious as iron; as abundant as clay; and, the Academy hopes, soon to be as cheap as dirt. The situation of the lower classes is just now deplorable in the extreme; meat is out of the question, and they never touch it; the absence of wine forces them to the resource of decoctions of leaves and roots; and bread is so dear that it is with difficulty they procure even that. NEWS BY THE AMERICA.

The mails by the steamer America arrived at Boston on Friday. We select the official accounts of the capture of the Mamelon and the Quarries on the 7th of June, and the Times's comments on the repulse of the allies on the 18th.

The papers contain nothing specially important additional to what has been published in the Halifax dispatch. Of the attack on the 18th of June, the Morning Herald says:—"The British troops carried the outworks of the Redan, but found that the enemy had prepared a deep trench, which it was impossible to pass without either scaling ladders or planks. The gallant band were exposed to a most murderous fire, and after sustaining, it is said, a loss of from four to five thousand men, and having forty officers killed, retired. Our causalties were much augmented by the guns of the Malakoff enfilading the outworks of the Redan; added to which, the men-of-war in the harbor were laid broadside on, and by their firing on the retiring troops caused fearful havoc, there being no cover of shelter whatever from the storm of projectiles."

The Daily News intimates that government was in possession of fuller intelligence, which it withheld from the public.

THE CAPTURE OF THE MAMELON AND THE QUARRIES.

BEFORE SEBASTOPOL, June 9. My Lord—I have the great satisfaction of informing your Lordship that the assault, which was made upon the Quarries in front of the Redan from our advanced parallel in the right attack on the evening of the 7th inst, was attended with perfect success, and that the brave men ed with perfect success, and that the brave men who achieved this success with a gallantry and determination that does them infinite honor maintained themselves on the ground they had acquired, notwithstanding that during the night, and in the morning of yesterday, the enemy made reperted attempts to drive them out, each attempt ending in failure, although supported by large bodies of troops, and by heavy discharges of musketry, and every species of offensive missile.

The French on our right had shortly before moved out of their trenches and attacked the Ouvrages Blancs and the Mamelon. These they carried without the smallest check, and their leading column rushed forward and approached the Malakhoff tower; but this it had not been in contemplation to assail, and the troops were brought back and finally established in the enemy's works, from which the latter did not succeed in expelling them, though the fire of musketry and cannon which was brought to bear upon them was tremendous. I never saw anything more spirited and rapid than the advance of our allies.

I am happy to say that the best feeling prevails between the two armies, and each is proud of and confident in the gallantry and high military qualities of the other.

I apprised your Lordship, by telegraph on the 6th, that our batteries re-opened that afternoon. The fire was kept up with the greatest energy until the day closed, when it was confined to vertical fire, but the next morning the guns resumed the work of destruction, and the effect was such that it was determined by Gen. Pelissier and myself that the time had arrived for pushing our operations forward. Accordingly, soon after 6 o'clock on the evening of the 7th, the signal was given for the assault of the works I have enumerated, and the result was most triumphant.

The troops employed in storming the Quarries were composed of detachments from the Light and Second divisions, and at night they were supported by the 63d regiment.

Although nothing could be more spirited than the attack of the Quarries or more creditable to every officer and man engaged in the opera-tion, yet I cannot refrain from drawing your Lordship's especial attention to the energy and determination which they all displayed in maintaining and establishing themselves after their first success in them. They were repeatedly attacked during the night, and again soon after daylight on the 8th, and it was in resisting these repeated efforts on the part of the enemy that a great portion of the heavy loss the army has to deplore was sustained.

Notwithstanding the frequency of the endea-vors of the Russians to regain possession of the Quarries, and the interruptions to the work to which these attacks gave rise, Lieut. Col. Tyl-den was enabled to effect the lodgment and to establish the communication with the advanced

It is deeply to be lamented that this success should have entailed so heavy a loss as is shown in the accompanying returns, which, however, are still incomplete I have just learned that the enemy have

We have a few prisoners, and among them a captain of infantry, who was wounded, and taken by Corporal Quinn, of the 47th regiment.

I have, &c., RAGLAN.

The Moniteur publishes the following order of the day, addressed by Gen. Pelissier to his troops:

"Soldier ! The combat of the 7th of June is brilliant victory, from the eclat it throws upon our arms and from the greatness of the results obtained. You have deserved well of the Em-"By courage and intrepidity you have captured from the enemy the three redoubts, armed with a powerful artillery, which formed the principal external defense of the town. Sixtytwo guns have remained in our hands; and 400 prisoners, of whom 14 are officers, are in our power. "A later order of the day will proclaim to the army and to our country the names of the corps that took a glorious part in this struggle, and the names of those among you to whom the reward of valor is due.

"I content myself to-day with telling you that your task has been nobly done. In concert with our brave Allies, we have made a decisive step in advance toward the object which, you may rest assured, our persevering efforts will not fail

"Soldiers! My confidence in you is unlimited, and your Commander-in-Chief is proud to think that you place yours in him.

"Headquarters before Sebastopol, June 8." The following is the more detailed account of the special correspondent of the London Times:

Camp before Sebastopol, June 6.—A term has been put once more to the long days of expectation and the wearisome indolence or sameness of our camp life. For the third time our fire has opened along the whole range of positions. At half past two o'clock to day, 157 guns and mortars on our side, and above 390 on the French, awoke from silence to tumult. The su-and bravado. They fired frequent salvos, at intervals, of four to six guns, and also, by way of reprisals, threw heavy shot up to our Light Division and on to the Picket-house hill.

June 7 .- At four o'clock this morning the Redan gave some evidence of having yielded to rough treatment, the jaws of its embrasures gaping, and its fire being irregular and inter-rupted. Captain Peel came by, on his way up from the trenches, about five, very dusty and powdery. His reckless and dauntless seamen had been making beautiful practice, and had met with what must for them be considered a very moderate proportion of loss. At nine a cool breeze, much stronger than usual, sprung up and continued throughout the day. On the extreme left, toward the Quarantine, there was very slight firing from the French. The enemy ei'her could not or would not keep up a very vigorous reply. About eleven o'clock a shell from the Russians exploded a magazine in our eight-gun battery, and a yell of applause fol-lowed the report. Very slight harm, happily, resulted from the explosion.

The fire on our side, which had continued since day break quietly and soberly, took a sudden access of fury about 3 o'clock, and was kept up from that hour to the critical moment with great activity. Between five and six, Lord Raglan and his staff took up a conspicuous po-sition on the edge of the hill, where it commands very plainly our 4-gun battery and looks straight into the teeth of the Redan. The man with the fireworks was in attendance, but there was a pause yet for a while. Sir Collin Campbell was observed to plant himself on the next summit still nearer to the enemy, commonly called, to use legal phrase, the Green Hill. His appearance drew some fire, and the shells dropped and flashed close by, but without disconcerting his purpose of having a thorough good look out place. It was about half past six when the head of the French attacking column came into view from those two spots, as it climbed its arduous road to the Mamelon. A rocket instantly went off as the signal for our diversion, and as instantly the small force of our men detached for the post of honor made a rush at the Quarries.

After one slight check they drove out the Russians, and turning round the gabions com-menced making themselves snug; but the interest was so entirely concentrated upon the more exciting scene, full in view upon the right, that they had to wait a good while before attention was directed to their conflict. The French went up the steep to the Mamelon in most beautiful style and in loose order, and every straining eye was upon their movements, which the declining daylight did not throw out into bold relief. their figures, like light shadows flitting across the dim barrier of earthworks, were seen to mount up unfailingly—were seen running, climbing, scrambling like skirmishers up the slopes on to the body of the work amid a plunging fire from the guns, which, owing to their loose formation, did them as yet but little damage The Zouaves were upon the parapet firing down into the place from above; the next moment a flag was up as rallying point and defi-ance, and was seen to sway hither and thither, now up, now down, as the tide of battle raged round it; and now like a swarm they were in the heart of the Mamelon, and a fierce hand to hand encounter here with the musket, then with the bayonet, was evident. It was seven minutes and a half from the commencement of the enand a nair from the commencement of the en-terprise. Then there came a rush through the angle where they had entered, and there was a momentary confusion outside. Groups, some idle, some busy, some wounded, were collected on the hither side, standing in shelter, and now on the fither side, standing in shelter, and how and then to the far corner a shell flew from the English battery facing it. But hardly had the need of support become manifest, and a gun or two again flashed from the embrasure against them, than there was another run in, another sharp bayonet fight inside, and this time the Russians went out spiking their guns.

Twice the Russians made head against the current, for they had a large mass of troops in reserve, covered by the guns of the Round Tower. Twice they were forced back by the onsweeping flood of French, who fought as if they had eyes upon them to sketch the swift event in detail. For ten minutes or so the quick flash and roll of small arms had declared that the uncertain fight waxed and waned inside the enclosure. Then the back door, if one may use a humble metaphor, was burst open. The noise of the conflict went away down the descent on the side towards the town, and the arena grew larger. It was apparent that the Russians had been reinforced by the space over which the battle spread. When the higher ground again the seat of action, then there came the became second rush of the French back upon their supports, for the former one was a mere reflux or eddy of the stream. doned a work in the rear of the "Ouvrages from the French General's position, and seemed to emphasize by their repetition some very plain command, we began to get nervous. It was growing darker, too, so that with our glasses we could with difficulty distinguish the actual state of affairs. At last through the twilight we discerned that the French were pouring in. After in the morning of the following day—a day the interval of doubt, our ears could gather that the swell and babble of the fight was once more rolling down the hill, and that the Russians were conclusively beaten. "They are well into it this time," says one to another, handing over the The musket flashes were no more to be een within it. There was no more lightning of the heavy guns from the embrasures. A shapeless hump upon a hill, the Mamelon, was an ex-tinct volcano, until such time as it should please us to call it again into action. Then, at last, the more hidden struggle of our own men in the hollow on the left came uppermost. "How are our fellows getting on?" says one. "Oh! take my word for it they're all right," says another.

And they were right, so far as the occupation and retention was concerned, but had, nevertheless, to fight all night and repel six success sive attacks of the Russians, who displayed the most singular pertinacity and recklessness of life As it grew dark our advanced battery under the Green Hill made very pretty practice and pretty spectacle by flipping shells over our men's heads at the Russians. Meanwhile the fall of the Mamelon and the pursuit of the flying foe did not by any means bring the combat to an end on the side of the allies. The Zouaves, emboldened by the success, and enraged by their losses carried their powers a step too far, and dream of getting into the Round Tower by a coup de main. A new crop of battle grew up over all the intervening hollow between it and the Mamelon, and the ripple of musket shots plashed and leaped over the broad hill side. The combat tants were not enough for victory here too, but they were enough for a sanguinary and pro-longed contest—a contest to the eye far more violent than that which preceded it. The tower itself, or rather the inglorious stump of what was the Round Tower, took and gave shot and shell and musketry with the most savage ardor

The fire of its musketry was like one sheet of flame rolling backwards and forwards with a mortars on our side, and above 390 on the French, awoke from silence to tumult. The superiority of our fire over the enemy became apparent at various points before nightfall, especially in the Redan, which was under the special attention of the Naval Brigade. The Russians displayed, however, plenty of determination of determination of the skirmish, residually in the Redan, which was under the special attention and aim of the skirmish, residually in the Russians doubled their exertions, and flung their shells sians secreted behind buildings; they at first de-into the Round Tower with admirable precision, doing immense mischief to the defenders. It was dark now, and every one of them came out against the heavens as it rose or swooped. From Gordon's battery and the second parallel they streamed and plunged into the enceinte up to which the Zouaves had won their way unsupported, heralded every now and then by the prompt and decisive ring of a round shot. The Russian defence, rather than their defences crumbled away before the tremendous fire, but, on the other hand, the attack not being fed, as it was not designed, began to languish, and died gradually away. It was a drawn battle so far; but there may be another story to-morrow.

12 P. M.—The French are putting the new front of their position in a state of defense, and are employing an impense number of hands are employing an immense number of hands. Our men are still in their warm berth in the Redan, repelling the attacks of the Russians. There was but one embrasure left in a comforta-ble state in the Redan at the end of the evening. and the quarries are too close under it for heavy guns to be brought to bear.

June 8.—During the night repeated attacks. six in all, were made upon our men in the quar-ries, who defended their new acquisition with the utmost courage and pertinacity and a great sacrifice of life, against superior numbers, continually replenished. The strength of the party told off for the attack was in all only 1,000, of whom 600 were in support. At the commence-ment 200 only went in, and another 200 follow-ed. More than once there was a fierce hand to hand fight in the position itself, and our fellows had frequently to dash out in front and take their assailants in flank. The most murderous sortie of the enemy took place about 3 o'clock in the morning; then the whole ravine was lighted up with a blaze of fire, and a storm of shot thrown in from the Strand Battery and every other spot within range. With a large body in reserve, it is freely asserted that the Russians could have been into the Redan in a twinkling. When morning dawned, the position of both parties was one of expectation. The French were in great force within and on the outer slopes of the Mamelon, and also in possession of two out of the three offsets attached to the Ma melon on the Sapoune-hill. On our side 365 rank and file and 35 officers had been killed and wounded. On the French side near double the number of officers, and a total of not less than 1,500 men-some say as high as 3,700, but this must be an exaggeration.

Troops of wounded men came slowly up, some English, the greater portion French, begrimmed with the dust of battle. On the left a party of Zouaves had stopped for a shorttime to rest their burden, bearing the dead bodies of three of their officers. A little lower an English sold-ier was down on the grass exhausted and wellnigh unconscious from some sudden seizure. party of French were gathered round him, supporting him on the bank, and offering water from their canteens, which he wildly motioned aside. A lively and even pretty looking vivandiere came striding up the ascent, without a symptom of acknowledgement to the racing masses of iron, and smiling as if the honor of her corps had been peoperly maintained. Outside the abattis of the Round Tower several corpses of Zouaves were to be distinguished; about the Mamelon the French troops were hard at work, some of them stripped for coolness to their drawers, and were seen creeping down the declivity on the side towards the Malakoff, and making for themselves a deep shelter from its

June 9, 12 o'ctock .- At this last moment I hear it stated that the Russians are carrying shot and shell off to the other side of the harbor—that may mean that they are getting ready for a bolt, a la bonne heure—may it prove true. Among other illustrations of character which came out during the recent struggle, it may be told that one of our sailor artillerymen being desired to keep under cover, and not put his head out to tempt a rifle bullet, grumbled at the prohibition, saying to his comrades, loud enough to be overheard, and meaning to be overheard, "I say, Jack, they wont let a fellow go and look where his own shot is; we aint afraid, we aint that's what I call hard lines."

Our loss in officers killed has been great. The 88th have been the severest sufferers, having three officers killed, one missing and conjectured to be killed, and four wounded—all, indeed, who were engaged. The 4 senior officers of the 63d were put hors de combat.

[From the London Times of June 23,]

The intelligence of the unsuccessful attack of the allied forces on the Malakoff Tower and the Redan, on the 18th of June, reached us at so late an hour yesterday morning that our re marks upon the progress of the siege had already gone to press; atd onr readers will have observed that, although we were not unacquinted with the sinister reports already in circulation, we were unwilling to place reliance upon them until they had received the unequivocal sanction of official authority. The dispatches which have since arrived both from Lord Raglan and Gen. Pelissier establish beyond doubt that the combined movements of the allied armies recommencec on the 17th, and that early in the morning of the following day-a day tre of victory—an attack was made on the Great Redan and the Malakoff Tower, which was repulsed with a most heavy and grievous loss on our side.

The troops withdrew into our own lines, effecting their retreat in order; but in the fearful struggle which took place upon and within the works both French and English were mowed down by the enemy in the rear of the batteries The losses of the allies are believed to be greater than in any former action of the war Sir John Campbell, Col. Yea, of the 7th Reg. iment, Col. Shadforth, of the 57th, and many other officers of distinguished gallantry fell in our ranks; while the French nave lost two gen eral officers, and a vast number of men in all branches of the service. This event is calculated to excite the strongest national re-gret; yet it must be borne in mind that in the progress of a long and difficult siege there is nothing extraordinary in the repulse of one or nore partial assaults.

This is, in fact, the first time since the comnencement of the Crimean war that our armies have suffered any check in an important combined operation. The Russians have been repulsed a dozen times during the siege in their nocturnal attacks on the French and English lines, although our works are incomparably weaker than the Malakoff tower and the Redan Scarcely a siege of any magnitude is to be found in military history, in which the garrison has not once or twice beaten back the besiegers from its works. The Russians made no less than five assaults on Silistria, and were five times defeated. The French were foiled in their first attack on the Man.elon, though they are now victoriously possessed of it. Our sorrow at this failure, and especially at the sacrifice of gallant and devoted men which it has cost us, is at least unmixed with despondency, although, it seems, we have yet to learn the whole extent of the resources of the place and the enemy to whom we are opposed.

Russian Defence of the Hango Massacre.— The Invalide Russe of the 15th describes the af-fended themselves, but were forced to surrender to superior numbers. Five were killed and one officer, one surgeon and nine sailors caged, of whom four were wounded. The boat was sunk, and the boat's flag, together with seven guns and seven cutlasses, taken. On the following day a frigate approached and fired on the place ineffectually for two hours.

The massacre at Hango is spoken of in the St. Petersburg Gazette as a very successful skir-mish. The success of this affair, it says, must be ascribed to the coolness and foresight of Ensign Eswertschkow. The same journal speaks of two steamers of the allies having landed 200 men on the 9th at Trangsund, on an inlet of the Bay of Finland, but the force had reembarked on the follow
